

Commemoration of the Holocaust's victims through Gunter Demnig's Stolpersteine

הנצחת קרבנות השואה באמצעות אבני ההנצחה של גונטר דמניג

For over twenty years, Gunter Demnig (1947-) has been laying stumbling blocks ('Stolpersteine'), first across Germany and later across Europe. It is an ongoing project which the German artist plans to carry on for as long as he can. As of today, over 65,000 have been set. There are Stolpersteine in over 610 places in Germany and many more in other countries, as in Austria, Belgium, Croatia, France, Greece, Hungary, the Netherlands, the Czech Republic, Norway and the Ukraine. The world's largest decentralized memorial provides us with the Jewish map of Europe prior to WWII.
